Description: Art has long been the visual representation of cultures, peoples and civilizations and understanding it is a key step to understanding history as a whole. In this class we take a look at the history of art from prehistoric to post-modern. We will cover various art forms, the specifics on the pieces themselves, as well as the cultural context for each era. In-class students can expect to work through the text from a Christian worldview and engage in group discussions on the relevance of our topics. Students will be asked to follow along with the text as well as provide evidence of comprehension with weekly assignments. I look forward to exploring the realm of art history with your students.
